What to consider when choosing the best level for your child.

Level One – The child has never swam before or is afraid in the water

Level Two – The child is comfortable going into the water and under water with face submerged.

Level Three – The child is comfortable jumping or moving independently in the water and floating.

Level Four – The child is able to swim most of the length of the pool independently

Levels Five and Six – The child has a good knowledge of the 4 strokes (front crawl, back crawl, breaststroke and butterfly).
